His gifts were not limited to one activity or one peer group. His ubiquitous appeal to every corner and person in the KP universe was the fact that his concern and friendship was "real." He gave—not because of recognition—but because he loved the diverse people and personalities that make up the King Philip community. And when Henry was diagnosed with cancer in the spring of 2014, he received that love back from the King Philip family. This reciprocal relationship continued for two more years. Cancer did not stop Henry from giving to our community—not even when his cancer returned and not even when it became terminal. And through that courageous battle, he leaned on KP after having given so much to our universe. One of Henry's questions to himself and others throughout his battle was "Tell me what is it you plan to do with your one wild & precious life?" So what is your answer to Henry? As importantly, how has what you have given to KP and received from KP contributed to that plan? Complete and submit an essay on this topic. No transcript needed. (Donor Selects)
